WELCOME MESSAGE

Dear Colleagues,

It is our pleasure to welcome you once more to our Second Istanbul Reconstructive Breast Cancer Surgery (IREBS) Workshop. This basic oncoplastic breast surgery training programme is a joint project of SENATURK, The Association of Breast Surgery (ABS), The British Association of Plastic, Reconstructive and Aesthetic Surgeons (BAPRAS), The Royal College of Surgeons of London (RCS) and European Academy of Senology (EAoS). This year's programme will include all aspects of therapeutic mammoplasty which we think breast surgeons should be skilled. Therefore we expect this workshop to attract all levels of surgical oncologists with a major interest in breast cancer management.

The faculty will include leading breast and plastic surgeons from UK, Germany, Egypt and Turkey. The workshop programme will consist of both lectures on every aspect of reconstructive breast cancer surgery and practical modules for therapeutic mammoplasty techniques which participants may apply to their patients during every day practice. At first day, course attendants will listen to experienced surgeons on lectures about principles, indications, technique selection, preoperative planning and preperation, surgical techniques, avoidance and management of complications of reconstructive breast cancer surgery. At day 2, for a limited number of participants there will be 6 practical modules on various oncoplastic techniques. In each practical module two surgeon tutors will teach and coach 4 participants. At the end of the day all participants will be coached and supervised to perform 8 basic therapeutic mammoplasty techniques. During these modules, participants will be practicing "mark-up" and "surgical technique" on live and foam models as "hands-on" training after listening and watching the necessary tutorials for each technique.

We do hope you enjoy the workshop, and that you will return to your practice with a better understanding of the expanding role of oncoplastic surgery in breast cancer management today.
